ADVANCING KNOWLEDGE

CREATING HOPE FOR TOMORROW.
The mission of the Pulmonary Fibrosis Foundation is to serve as the trusted resource for the pulmonary fibrosis community by raising awareness, providing disease education, and funding research.
DEAR FRIENDS,

AS I REFLECT ON THE PAST YEAR, I am somewhat overwhelmed but extremely gratified by all that has transpired and all that has been accomplished. The landscape in pulmonary fibrosis is rapidly changing. As of this writing, there are two new therapies under review by the FDA, which if approved could initiate a whole new era of treatments for patients. Additionally, during the past year the Foundation conducted an extremely successful PFF Summit, announced plans to move forward with the PFF Care Center Network (CCN) and the PFF Patient Registry, implemented a number of initiatives to enhance disease awareness, and completed a patient survey to provide important information that will enable us to better respond to the needs of the PF community. I will expand upon some of these endeavors and milestones in the following paragraphs.

The highly praised and successful PFF Summit 2013: From Bench to Bedside, was attended by over 500 people from 15 countries. The conference brought together a spectrum of physicians, researchers, allied health professionals, industry representatives, patients, and caregivers. The Summit promoted education and collaboration among the entire PF community. We are extremely grateful to our Everest sponsors, Boehringer Ingelheim and InterMune, Inc. and our Shasta sponsor, Genentech. All their support was instrumental to the success of the meeting. Online webinars of the Summit presentations can be viewed at www.pffsummit.org. Please make plans to attend PFF Summit 2015, November 12–14 in Washington, DC. We are certain that it will be a highly informative as well as an inspiring event.

Two of 2013’s most important accomplishments, the PFF Care Center Network (CCN) and the PFF Patient Registry, will enable investigators to learn more about PF and will bring us closer to a cure. Also, physicians will be able to standardize care and develop evidence-based, “best practice” protocols. The CCN is composed of medical centers with demonstrated multidisciplinary expertise in fibrotic lung diseases. The Registry, the first national, multi-center database of standardized information about PF patients, will collect data that is essential for clinical research. This network will also allow patients and health care providers to collaborate on a national scale.

As part of Global Pulmonary Fibrosis Awareness Day on September 7, we launched the website www.globalpfawareness.org to help communicate with patients, caregivers, health care professionals, legislators, and the general public. During the month there were a variety of Team PFF events ranging from walks and wine tastings to art shows and raffles. All of these events helped to open eyes and create interest on a grassroots level.

I’m proud of all that we attained in 2013.

None of this would have been possible without the combined support of individual contributors, volunteers, foundation grants, and corporate donors. We’re extremely grateful for all the dedication you’ve shown and for your continued commitment, which will help us move forward to eradicate this deadly disease. Once again, thank you for all you do for the PF community.

Sincerely,

DANIEL M. ROSE, MD
CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER
EXPANDING AVAILABLE RESOURCES FOR A RARE DISEASE IS A TOUGH JOB—but fortunately, it’s an effort that has a snowball effect. The more people who recognize the importance of supporting pulmonary fibrosis (PF) awareness, education, and research initiatives, the more they in turn influence others and attract new supporters to the cause. Little steps add up to big distances traveled when those numbers keep multiplying.

In the PF community, we’re beginning to see the many payoffs from that snowballing support. Although we’re a young organization, we’ve already established the Pulmonary Fibrosis Foundation (PFF) as the most reliable, accessible point of access for information about this rare disease. Patients and caregivers consider us their trusted source for the latest PF community news, education about PF, and information on finding quality medical care.

The PFF is also the first choice for support services for patients and caregivers. Participating in support groups—connecting with others facing similar experiences and obtaining practical information—can have a positive impact on patients’ health and emotional well-being. Support groups also can be a valuable resource for caregivers, family, and friends. PF support systems have grown significantly to include social media networks, independently run online and in-person support groups, and a PFF-sponsored Support Group Leader Network. Wherever PF patients are in the world, PFF support resources are there for them.

All of these programs are making a tangible difference in PF families’ quality of life. I invite you to join our efforts with a gift that will help sustain our established support initiatives as well as several new programs. We are proud to have received a four-star rating from Charity Navigator and accreditation from the Better Business Bureau and can assure you that your gift will go a long way. The recently launched PFF Patient Communication Center is a central information hub offering patients, health care providers, and the general public the most up-to-date medical information and resources. The PFF Ambassador program empowers patients, their caregivers and health care professionals as spokespersons for the PF community. Through sharing their own experiences with pulmonary fibrosis, these Ambassadors promote awareness, disseminate the latest medical information, and provide hope and inspiration to others touched by PF. The new PFF Disease Education Webinar Series allows the PF community to virtually learn from, connect with, and pose questions to leading pulmonary fibrosis specialists.

We’re deeply grateful to all the PFF sponsors and donors who help keep PF families up to date, connected, and mutually supportive. In 2014 and beyond, join the PFF “snowball” in helping pulmonary fibrosis patients and their caregivers make informed decisions supporting their physical and emotional health.

Sincerely,

PATTI TUOMEY, EdD
PRESIDENT AND CHIEF OPERATING OFFICER
ABOUT THE DISEASE

WHAT IS PULMONARY FIBROSIS AND WHAT ARE THE CAUSES?
Pulmonary fibrosis (PF) describes a condition in which the lung tissue becomes thickened, stiff, and scarred.

The medical term used to describe this scar tissue is “fibrosis.” The alveoli (air sacs) and the blood vessels within the lungs are responsible for delivering oxygen to the body. All of the body’s functions depend upon delivery of an adequate supply of oxygen. As lung tissue becomes scarred and thickened, it is more difficult for the lungs to transfer oxygen into the bloodstream. As a result, the brain, heart, and other organs do not get the oxygen they need to function properly.

Pulmonary fibrosis can result from a number of causes: certain environmental agents (dust, silica), medications (antibiotics, antiarrhythmics), radiation, autoimmune diseases (scleroderma, rheumatoid arthritis), or a genetic predisposition.

However, in most situations the etiology (cause) is unknown. If there is no known cause, and specific radiologic or pathologic criteria are met, the disease is called idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis (IPF).

There are more than 200 related diseases that affect the lungs with inflammation and/or scarring. These are known as interstitial lung diseases (ILD). Idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis is the most serious and common form of ILD. IPF is a progressive, fatal lung disease, for which there is no known cause or cure.

WHAT DOES THE DISEASE LOOK LIKE?
There are no reliable data to determine how many people are affected by PF, possibly due to the large number of conditions under which it can arise. However, one recent study estimates IPF affects 1 out of 200 adults over the age of 65 in the United States. Approximately 50,000 new cases are diagnosed each year and as many as 40,000 Americans die from IPF each year. The current estimate of the incidence of IPF in the EU is between 37,000 and 40,000 people. It is anticipated that the number of individuals diagnosed with IPF will continue to increase as a result of people living longer, an improved clinical understanding of IPF, and earlier and more accurate diagnosis. PF can strike at any age. IPF appears to affect more men than women and usually occurs between the ages of 50 and 70. The median survival is just two to three years following diagnosis and more than two-thirds of patients will die within five years.

Symptoms include: shortness of breath (dyspnea), chronic cough, fatigue and weakness, discomfort in the chest, loss of appetite, and weight loss.

Treatments include: supplemental oxygen, pulmonary rehabilitation, optimizing weight and exercise, lung transplantation for those who qualify, and medications to manage symptoms. Some patients may benefit from disease-specific therapy for IPF:

- NINTEDANIB: Nintedanib is an anti-fibrotic drug that is currently being reviewed by the US Food and Drug Administration as a possible treatment for IPF. Two large clinical trials showed that nintedanib slowed down the loss of function in IPF.
- PIRFENIDONE: Pirfenidone is an anti-fibrotic and anti-inflammatory drug approved to treat IPF in the EU, Canada, and Asia. It is currently being reviewed by the US Food and Drug Administration as a possible treatment for IPF. Pirfenidone has been shown to slow progression of mild-to-moderate IPF.
- PREDNISONE: Prednisone is an anti-inflammatory therapy that can help some people with inflammation in the lungs.

Pulmonary fibrosis is a devastating disease. It is our goal to help find effective treatments and ultimately a cure. Until that time we aspire to increase disease awareness; provide educational materials and events for patients and health care professionals; advocate for the PF community; and offer support to patients, family members, and caregivers.
HIGHLIGHTS

2/25
Broadway Belts for PFF!

5/15
One-year anniversary of PF community on InspireSM

5/17–22
Exhibited at the American Thoracic Society (ATS) International Conference

7/10–13
Attended the British Association for Lung Research’s (BALR) Summer Conference and co-hosted PF Patient Support Day in conjunction with the meeting
IN DEDICATION TO ITS MISSION OF SERVING AS THE TRUSTED RESOURCE for the pulmonary fibrosis (PF) community by raising awareness, providing disease education, and funding research, the Pulmonary Fibrosis Foundation (PFF) participated in a variety of events across the country and globe in 2013. From hosting PFF Summit 2013 to taking part in scholarly conferences to sponsoring fundraising events, the PFF creates opportunities for patients and health care providers to connect and learn more about the disease, family members to honor loved ones, and researchers to make new discoveries that will one day lead to a cure for PF.

10/26
Hosted Breathe Benefit 2013: Community Inspiring a Cure and announced the PFF Research Awards and Leanne Storch Awards recipients

10/26–31
Exhibited at the American College of Chest Physicians (CHEST) Conference

9/7–11
Global Pulmonary Fibrosis Awareness Day  Debuted new patient education materials in ten languages. Hosted patient education events at PFF Chicago headquarters and in Barcelona in conjunction with the ERS Annual Congress

12/5–7
PFF Summit 2013: From Bench to Bedside and PFF Care Center Network and PFF Patient Registry announcement

Raising awareness of a rare disease is challenging. It takes time, perseverance, and community involvement to let the world know about pulmonary fibrosis (PF), but these awareness-building efforts yield significant payoffs. The Pulmonary Fibrosis Foundation (PFF) engages in multipronged efforts to heighten awareness that extends beyond the patient and caregiver community, also reaching health care providers, researchers, legislators, and the public. These initiatives boost research and funding, increase drug development and enrollment in clinical trials, promote faster and more accurate diagnoses, improve patient care, encourage legislators and regulatory agencies to help, and pave the way toward more effective treatments. Every mention of PF brings us a step closer to finding a cure.
“I HAVE BECOME INVOLVED WITH THE PULMONARY FIBROSIS FOUNDATION BECAUSE IT WAS SOMETHING MY DAD WAS REALLY PASSIONATE ABOUT. THEY PROVIDE SUPPORT AND INFORMATION TO PEOPLE AFFECTED BY THIS TERRIBLE DISEASE.”

JEANETTE POHLEN
PF ADVOCATE AND INDIANA FEVER WOMEN’S BASKETBALL TEAM MEMBER

Spreading Awareness… On and Off the Court

The combined efforts of the PF community helped make GLOBAL PULMONARY FIBROSIS AWARENESS DAY 2013 a success. Jeannette Pohlen, PF advocate and member of the Indiana Fever WNBA team, lost her father to idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis in 2012. Pohlen, her teammates, and her coaches donned wristbands and posted a photo (above) on social media to raise PF awareness. The PFF was the Fever’s Community Spotlight Partner during the final game of the season. At that game, the Fever aired a PSA about PF and recognized the PFF in an on-court presentation.

TEAM PFF HOSTED 100-PLUS EVENTS IN MORE THAN 25 STATES IN 2013
EDUCATION

The more patients and caregivers know about pulmonary fibrosis (PF), the better the quality of life. Pulmonary Fibrosis Foundation (PFF) education materials provide practical information about PF symptoms, diagnostic tests, treatment, monitoring, lifestyle changes, and palliative and hospice care. PFF events including the biennial PFF Summit, Team PFF fundraisers, and social gatherings offer opportunities to learn about how to live with the disease and get involved with the PF community. Support groups and social media networks help patients and caregivers connect and share information with other PF families. At a community level is the PFF Support Group Leader Network, which institutes best practices and shares resources among support group leaders who guide meetings in medical centers across the country.
Biennial Summit Brings PF Community Together

Gathering physicians, researchers, allied health professionals, industry representatives, patients, and caregivers, the PFF SUMMIT 2013: FROM BENCH TO BEDSIDE in La Jolla, California, presented the most up-to-date medical information with the goal of improving care, management, and quality of life for those living with PF. The PFF recognized that coupling health care professionals with patients and caregivers in one Summit provides the PF community with a unique opportunity. Sessions for medical professionals ran concurrently with events for patients and caregivers, including opportunities for the two groups to interact, share information, and network.
Increased research is key to developing more effective treatments for pulmonary fibrosis (PF) patients, ultimately leading to a cure. The Pulmonary Fibrosis Foundation (PFF) directly funds research, promotes advocacy efforts, encourages collaboration between industry and academic researchers, and develops solutions to bridge gaps in PF research. The PFF’s I.M. Rosenzweig Junior Investigator Awards and Albert Rose Established Investigator Awards support projects with a high likelihood of widening PF knowledge in the areas of basic science, translational research, clinical medicine/research, and social science/quality of life. The PFF also partners with other professional organizations and foundations to support research that empowers the PF community today—and brings a brighter future to tomorrow’s patients.
Expanding Information Accelerates Discovery

The PFF CARE CENTER NETWORK (CCN) and PFF PATIENT REGISTRY are increasing our fundamental understanding of the disease. Members of the CCN, a growing group of medical centers with proven, multidisciplinary expertise in treating patients with fibrotic lung diseases, share knowledge that will elevate the standard of care of PF patients. The Registry is a collaborative effort that brings together patients, health care providers, and researchers. This database will collect anonymous information from patients at designated PFF sites to help PF experts develop more effective care strategies and therapies, benefitting PF patients around the globe.

“OUR GOAL IS TO CREATE A BROAD, REPRESENTATIVE, WELL-THOUGHT-OUT CCN AND REGISTRY. FROM THERE WE CAN IMPROVE THE CARE OF, AND EVENTUALLY FIND CURES FOR, PF PATIENTS.”

DR. KEVIN R. FLAHERTY
CHAIRMAN OF THE STEERING COMMITTEE OF THE PFF CARE CENTER NETWORK AND THE PFF PATIENT REGISTRY
THE PULMONARY FIBROSIS FOUNDATION PLACES ENORMOUS IMPORTANCE ON FUNDING NEW RESEARCH, developing solutions to bridge existing gaps in pulmonary fibrosis research, and encouraging collaborative relations between industry and academic researchers that will ultimately lead to successful therapies for pulmonary fibrosis.

2013 PFF RESEARCH FUND AWARDS

GENERAL RESEARCH GRANTS

Dr. Aldo T. Iacono / University of Maryland – “Open Label Use of Inhaled Cyclosporine in Lung Transplant Recipients” (Final Year)

Dr. Daniel J. Kass and Dr. Naftali Kaminski / University of Pittsburgh – “Targeting the Relaxin Pathway in Pulmonary Fibrosis” (Final Year)

Dr. Imre Noth / University of Chicago – “miRNA Expression in Patients with Rapidly Progressive IPF Versus Stable IPF” (Final Year)

Dr. Patricia J. Sime / University of Rochester – “Translational Studies of New Therapeutic Targets & Biomarkers in IPF” (Final Year) FUNDED IN PART BY THE GREG CHANDLER AND GUY F. SOLIMANO MEMORIAL GOLF TOURNAMENT

Dr. Andrew Tager / Massachusetts General Hospital – “Profibrotic Mechanisms of the LPA Pathway” (Final Year) FUNDED IN PART BY THE TIGHE FAMILY TRUST AND ROUINE RUN, INC.

I.M. ROSENZWEIG JUNIOR INVESTIGATOR AWARDS

Dr. Haitao (Mark) Ji / University of Utah – “Design and Synthesis of Selective Beta-catenin/T-Cell Factor Inhibitors for the Treatment of Idiopathic Pulmonary Fibrosis” (Year 2) FUNDED BY A GRANT FROM INTERMUNE, INC.

Dr. Rebecca Keith / University of Colorado, Denver – “Therapeutic Targeting of PTPN-13 in Idiopathic Pulmonary Fibrosis” (Year 2)

Dr. Kristen Tropea Leeman / Harvard Medical School, Boston Children’s Hospital – “Characterization of Endogenous Lung Stem Cells in a Pulmonary Fibrosis Model” (Year 1)

ALBERT ROSE ESTABLISHED INVESTIGATOR AWARDS

Dr. James S. Hagood / University of California, San Diego – “Extracellular Vesicles Alter Cell Phenotype in Pulmonary Fibrosis” (Year 2)

Dr. Glenn Rosen / Stanford University – “Analysis of Novel Functions of Human Telomerase RNA in IPF” (Year 2)

Dr. Michael F. Beers / University of Pennsylvania – “Modeling of Epithelial Cell Dysfunction in Pulmonary Fibrosis using SP-C BRICHO Mutations” (Year 1) FUNDED BY A GRANT FROM BOEHRINGER INGELHEIM

Dr. Mauricio Rojas / University of Pittsburgh – “Senescent Stem Cells Increases Susceptibility to Pulmonary Fibrosis” (Year 1)

ATS FOUNDATION/PFF INTERNATIONAL PARTNERSHIP GRANT

Dr. Anthony Shum / University of California, San Francisco – “Defining the Molecular Basis of Interstitial Lung Disease in Rheumatoid Arthritis” (Year 2)

ATS FOUNDATION/PFF/CPF PARTNERSHIP GRANT

Dr. Chi Hung / University of Washington – “Role of Collagen I-Derived Cells in Pulmonary Fibrosis” FUNDED BY THE PETE DEVITO MEMORIAL FOUNDATION

2013 SPONSORSHIPS

Yale University – Seventh Annual Yale Fibrosis Symposium

Center for Interstitial Lung Diseases / University of Washington Medical Center FULLY FUNDED BY THE FRIENDS OF THE CENTER FOR ILDS AT UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON MEDICAL CENTER
